For the future of cancer research, don't stand still.
We won't either.

Promoting organisations

If we stand still,
in 2030 one person
could die of cancer
every two seconds.

GET INVOLVED!

You are at ESMO 2017 because you have dedicated your life to oncology – your presence counts!

Show your support for a future without cancer:

1. Let's meet together in the IFEMA Plaza (outside Hall 6) on Sunday 10 September, 18:00. Cancer research needs you: join clinicians and researchers united for better patient outcomes; and receive a special gift!
2. Visit the ESMO Booth S1 in the Society Village: play an active role by putting your face in the collage of pictures on the World Cancer Research Day wall

ESMO doesn't stand still either...

ESMO is a global society, home to all oncology professionals involved in cancer research, diagnosis, treatment, care and advocacy, offering evidence-based medical oncology education within an integrated approach to cancer patient care.

ESMO serves its members and the oncology community through:

- Post-graduate oncology education and training
- Fellowship opportunities for young oncologists to learn how to think scientifically and conduct research
- International meetings to share expertise and best practice, learn about the most up-to-date scientific advances, and connect with colleagues in related disciplines worldwide
- Continuously reviewed, evidence-based standards for cancer care
- Advocacy and consultation to foster a favourable environment for scientific research
