

ESMO Declaration of Interests (DOI) Statement

Purpose and disclaimer

As leaders in the field of oncology we all have a responsibility to ensure that our work is presented in the most appropriate fashion to protect the integrity of our research and to provide complete transparency.

ESMO requires that all Chairs and Speakers participating in ESMO events complete a declaration of interest (DOI) form.

Interests that you should disclose are anything which may be perceived as being a conflict between your private interests and your official responsibilities as a person in a position of trust.

The declaration of interest must specify all financial interests you have in relation to the following organisations and cover up to the last 5 years:

Pharmaceutical, diagnostic, biotechnology, medical technology and research companies, private healthcare providers and commercial medical education providers.

You should provide details about any financial interests you may have in the above-mentioned organisations, including, but not limited to, employment, honoraria for speaker engagements and advisory roles, funding and ownership of any stocks and shares.

In addition, you should also declare non-financial interests which you have directly benefited from and which may be perceived as having enhanced your career, education or professional reputation, and may have given you access to privileged information.

ESMO shall neither be responsible for the accuracy, completeness, usability or security of your declaration of interests data, nor shall ESMO be liable for any damage or loss of any sort arising from or relating to any inaccuracy or incompleteness of your declaration, or resulting from any unauthorised access, use or alteration of your data.
